

Trust in the Lord

Trust in the Lord with all your heart,
Seek wisdom and guidance from God.
His blessings and presence will never depart,
No matter where you may trod.

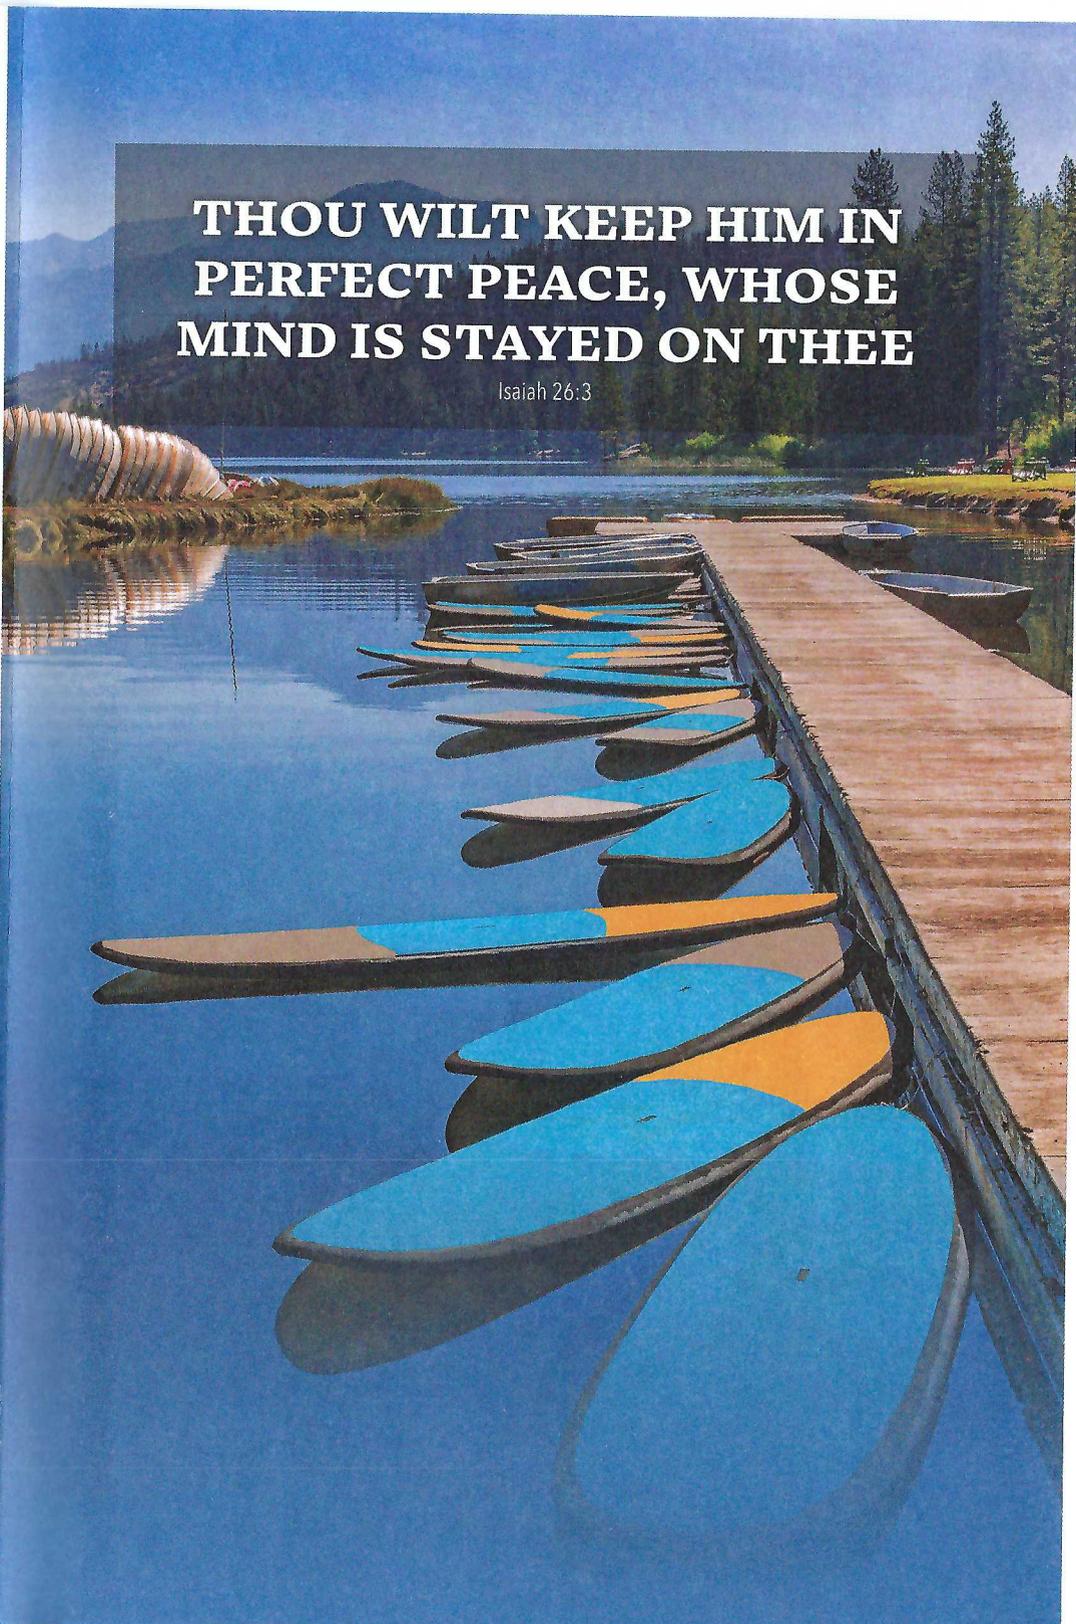

Trust in the Lord and do not fear,
Your need He will always supply.
In tribulation be of good cheer,
For He will forever be nigh.

He's ever ready to hear your heart's call;
He knows that your substance is clay.
You are His child, He'll not let you fall—
Trust Him and walk in His way.

Trust in the Lord; let courage arise
And finish the course you've begun.
Press toward the mark to seize the prize
For there are rewards to be won.

Lo, He is with you wherever you go
Until the end of your life.
All your tomorrows He already knows—
Fear not the battles and strife.

Think Before Reacting

*When judging someone else my friend, you never should forget,
There's no doubt at least one thing not known to you as yet.
'Bout circumstances of that one which known would temper you.
And make you ask; if in his place I wonder what I'd do.*

*It may be someone crossed his path and ruffled up his day,
And that is why he spoke those words He'd never planned to say.
And you, because you did not know, a judgement harsh did make.
If you'd but known, perchance a prayer you'd offered for his sake.*

*And he no doubt would have felt a strange and pleasant glow;
Think how it might have changed his day, tho you will never know.
Nor pat yourself upon the back that something great you've done,
Yet your regard for someone else had turned him to the Son.*

*This world no doubt, would sweeter be and we'd be more relaxed.
If we'd remember that each man with problems great is taxed.
And so he often says the things he later does regret.
But if our hearts are filled with love, these words we'll just forget.*
